Extend Time for Redemption

Further days of grace will be given delinquent taxpayers in rural municipalities and improvement districts by virtue of action now being taken by the Dept. of Municipal Affairs. Hon R G Reid is notifying members of the Legislature and secretaries of municipalities that in the case of improvement districts, the Crown will not take ownership of lands defaulting under tax recovery proceedings for 1922 until Dec 1. Something has been made to municipal secretaries they adopt a similar course in respect to lands due to pass into the possession of municipalities.

Tax Recovery Act provides that title to such lands shall be taken "after the expiry of the redemption period," but there is no stipulation as to how soon this shall be done.

In view of the prevailing harvest and market conditions and the probability that the farmers will not get cash returns for their crops for some months, it has been thought advisable to call attention to the fact that municipal treasurers are not by law compelled to issue transfers immediately upon the expiration of the year.

This will give taxpayers a further opportunity to redeem, and those desirous of doing this will be allowed a three months' extension. In regard to lands due to be taken over by Government, this is the course already decided upon by the Department.

It is thought that, by the first of December a considerable number of the delinquents will be in a position to meet the payment of their tax bills and redeem their farm lands now in arrears for taxes.

Sports Day at Evansburg

The week end sports at Evansburg attracted a good crowd from nearby places, Stony being well represented. The ball tournament opened Sunday, when Mr Laird's players gave the usual good account of themselves, winning by 12 to 3. They played a better game the next day, altho the score was more even—8 to 4.

Stony's ball team had the honor of taking the Barker Cup, which had been in the possession of the Evansburg team for some time. A prize of $50 went with the cup.

The team has the Driscoll Reach Cup coming to it, for finishing at the top in the Baseball League.

The local football team played a match, and lost to a much stronger team.

The visitors were given a good reception, a dance being held in the evening. All returned to town Tuesday, after having had a very pleasant holiday.

Stores Open Every Afternoon

Starting this week, all the stores in Stony will be open every Wednesday afternoon. The Wednesday half-holiday which had been in force for two months, proved to be very successful, and the shopping farmers of this district accommodated themselves to the change in an admirable manner.

Why Not Protect Yourself?

In the successful carrying on of any business, whether it be that of farming, or a store, or a factory, there are so many factors over which the individual has no control that it is all the more important that he should provide every possible safeguard against loss which it is within his power to command.

A few days ago a farmer came into one of our large Western cities and, meeting a friend, asked him the location of a certain mortgage corporation's office. In surprise the friend inquired as to the reason he was visiting such an office. The farmer explained that he had lost 1,500 acres of wheat through a severe hailstorm, and was now forced to mortgage his land. This big farmer, farseeing in so many things, had neglected to insure his crop against hail.

He could not protect his crop against drought, or rust, or locusts, and only to a limited extent against grasshoppers. As an individual he could not control freight rates, market prices, nor many of his productive costs. But it was hail, which he could not prevent, but against which he might have adequately insured himself. He failed to take that precaution and consequently found himself compelled to mortgage his land and pay heavy rates of interest which will make impossible his future profits.

The factory owner who fails to insure his buildings and plant against fire, and the storekeeper who neglects to insure his business, is regarded as little short of insane. The professional man who fails to insure his life, and whose family's income ceases when he dies, is imprudent and the object of severe censure among friends and relatives. And the grain farmer who is dependent on his field crops, the loss of which means his ruin, is a fool if he neglects to protect himself through insurance. If hail does not strike, he can afford to pay the premium; if it does strike, he can pay the premium out of the insurance received and still have a substantial margin wherewith to carry on.

The entire farming community of Western Canada is stirred up over the organizations of Wheat Pools, having for their object the more orderly marketing of wheat, the prevention of individual dumping on the market, thus tending to lower prices. Through the organization of these Pools it is hoped to add a few cents per bushel to the price realized by the grower, and in many cases those few cents will represent the difference between actual loss on production and a small profit. It is, therefore, hoped the Pools will succeed.

But hundreds, even thousands, of farmers continue to allow weeds to infest their land, weeds which reduce the yield per acre very considerably, sometimes alarmingly, and result in a loss far greater than the difference of a few cents per bushel in the selling price. Even with Wheat Pools it is going to be difficult to influence prices in the right direction, and the individual farmer cannot hope to do so. But farmers individually and collectively can add many dollars to the selling price of their grain crops by keeping their land as free as possible from weeds. Yet so many of them fail to do so. Even municipalities, entrusted with the responsibility of weed destruction, leave their road allowances to become veritable weed beds, a menace to the whole countryside.

United States Government experts have traced a loss of $12,500 to one barberry bush. The outbreak of stem rust started by this one bush travelled in one direction at least five miles and affected the wheat on eighteen farms. All over Western Canada can be seen patches of thistle being left to ripen for our prevailing winds to scatter in all directions and sufficient to reduce the yield of grain on tens of thousands of acres to an extent to more than offset many times over any betterment in price which the Wheat Pools can possibly bring about. Whether the Wheat Pools will prove a success time and actual experience alone can tell, but weeds can be successfully fought and overcome, and financial benefits from such action are certain.

The past season has been a difficult one, it is true, from the standpoint of weed destruction owing to the excessive moisture making the persistent working of the land at times impossible. But this fact only makes it all the more important that all municipalities adopt vigorous measures along the line of weed destruction. Let the Municipal Councils set a good example by cleaning up all the road allowances, and vigorously enforcing their bylaws insofar as all other lands are concerned.

Swiss Farmers Making Good

Judging by all reports received to date, the 700 Swiss brought out to Canada in the course of the present year are doing very well and progressing with their farming activities under the best of auspices. About 70 per cent. of the Swiss brought out were farmers by profession. Additional parties yet are expected this year.

Why We Are Right Handed

Ingenuous Explanation Sounds Perfectly Good in Any Event.

Away back in the beginning—the chief occupation of man was fighting. In battle he carried a shield in one hand and a weapon in the other. It was not much work to carry the shield, but the quick action required by the hand and arm which did the fighting soon developed that arm. It also developed the nerves and the half of the brain that governed the right side of the body. Those who shielded their left side—thus protecting the heart—were the ones who usually came out victorious. Down through the ages this selection continued, the right hand gradually becoming more proficient.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

May Obtain Relief by Enriching the Blood Supply

In the days of our fathers and grandfathers, rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had "rheumatism," as well as many young people. It was thought that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which, some times gave temporary relief, but did not remove the trouble. In these days there were many cures. Now, medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good, rich red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood-enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and the more general use of these pills has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. At the first sign of poor blood, which is shown by loss of appetite, dull skin and dim eyes, protect yourself against further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have helped thousands—and if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Proper Time

"The proper time to bathe is in the summer time."

Two Useful Recipes

A White Sauce for Creaming Vegetables or Meats

$\frac{1}{2}$ cupful Borden's St. Charles Milk.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful water.
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoonfuls butter or butter substitute.
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoonfuls salt.
1 scant half teaspoonful oil.
High seasoning of pepper or paprika.

Melt the butter substitute in a small saucepan, stir in the pepper and oil mixed with the flour and stir until well blended, away from the heat. Then gradually stir in the milk and water mixed, preferably using a wire whisk, and taking care that all of the liquid is thickened before a further amount is added. Let boil a moment or two, then add the vegetable and let stand over hot water for ten minutes to become thoroughly heated. Serve with asparagus, string beans, peas, brussels sprouts or potatoes.

Eggless Mayonnaise

Gold From Laurentic Has Been Recovered

Divining Spear Helped Greatly in Locating Bullion on Ocean Bed

All except a few bars of the thirty million dollars worth of gold bullion which dropped to the ocean bed when a German submarine sank the Laurentic off Donegal, Ireland, have been recovered by divers who, since 1918, have been carrying on their labors 90 feet below the surface of the sea. The 30 bars remaining in the wreck, it is expected, will also be brought up.

In addition to the gold, which was consigned to United States' bankers, the Laurentic was laden with almost $5,000,000 in silver specie, mostly in $-dollar pieces, all of which has been salvaged by the divers. The men have been using a divining spear with a dial attached which shows whether the spear point is touching gold or a less magnetic substance like iron. The apparatus was brought to the attention of the admiralty in 1920 by a college professor.

Previous to that time the divers in three years of labor had recovered 668 bars, but since the galvanometer was brought into use more than 2,100 have been brought to the top, each bar being worth from $5,000 to $10,000, depending upon the standard of the gold and the size of the bar.

Many infants are infested by worms which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weaknesses difficult to remedy. Settlers For Western Canada Expected In Increasing Numbers From Britain And U. S.

Farming conditions in the middle western states are not so satisfactory as in the Canadian prairie regions in the judgment of W. J. Black, Deputy Minister of Immigration, who has returned to Ottawa after attending a meeting of the Canada Colonization Association at Winnipeg and making a study of problems affecting his department.

While in the west, Mr. Black paid a visit to St. Paul, where he attempted to get in touch with the outlook of the farmer in the middle western states. He found that the agrarian population there was even more dissatisfied with its lot than was the case in Canada; that there was the same restless desire to move to other states or across the boundary line to begin over again in new surroundings; and that there seemed every prospect that American farmers would come to the western provinces in more than sufficient numbers to balance any loss sustained through removals from that part of the country.

Commenting upon the work of the Canadian Colonization Association, the deputy minister said that the efforts of this organization had, up to the present time, been chiefly directed towards settling farmers from the United States upon western farms. As time went on, he expected that the activities of the association would be carried on upon a broader scope and would include British immigrants as well as Americans.

Every effort would be made by the Colonization Association, Mr. Black stated, to find work to tide British harvest hands over the winter so that they could settle permanently in this country. Many of them, he claimed, had some money which they were ready to invest in farm lands, and every assistance would be rendered this class by immigration and colonization officials.

Asked about the operation of the Empire Settlement Act, the deputy minister said those sections of the legislation pertaining to juveniles and domestics were working smoothly, but that the nominating regulations had not been long enough in force to judge its effect upon immigration.

Under the Empire Settlement Act, Mr. Black explained, $30 was advanced as passage money for boys and girls in Great Britain to come to Canada. Of this amount, $10 was subscribed by the Dominion and $20 by Imperial authorities. The money advanced for the passage in the case of domestics took the form of a loan. Under the third class, prospective immigrants were nominated by citizens of Canada. It was stipulated that they would settle upon the land and 75 per cent. of their passage money was advanced to them.

No grants or loans were made to harvest hands by the Government, the deputy minister said. There was an impression in some quarters, he felt, that such men had received financial assistance from the Canadian authorities, but this was incorrect.

A Growing Port

Prince Rupert, B.C., Has Most Promising Future

An event significant of the future of Prince Rupert as a trans-oceanic port occurred last month, when the Canadian Merchant Marine ship Canadian Transporter, sailed thence with a cargo of lumber direct for Yokohama. This was the first ship to load cargo at Prince Rupert and clear for the Orient. It is hoped that the inauguration of this direct service will develop into a permanent route for trans-Pacific traffic.

L. F. Floyd, provincial apiculturist for Manitoba, states that honey crop prospects in the province were never better than they are today. Nearly every locality reports sufficient moisture, with sweet clover yielding a surplus.

Japanese Motoring Rules

Oriental Police Way of Laying Down Traffic Laws

Every nation has something to learn from other nations, says Answers (London). For instance, consider our motor rules. How terribly worded they are, how banal and brief! How different from the Japanese, from whom we might well learn the art of being polite in verse.

The following, a contemporary tells us, are some of their motor rules:

At the rise of the hand of the honorable policeman stop with rapidness greatly. Do not pass him, or otherwise disrespect him.

When a passenger of foot heaves in sight tootle the horn, melodiously at first. If he still obstructs your passage, tootle him with large vigor, and express by word of mouth a warning, "Hi, hi!"

Beware of the wandering sow, that she shall not take fright as you pass. Do not explore the exhausted noise-box at her.

Give space to the festive dog that makes play-sport in the roadway.

Avoid engaging your dog with the wheel-spoke.

Go smoothly on the grass-mat as there lurks the skiddy demon. Press the brake of the foot as you roll round the corner, and save collapse and tie-up.

Thank you honorably.

Demand For Canned Whale Meat

The whaling industry is very promising this season. Whales are reported early and plentiful on the grounds, the whale oil market is on the climb, and the demand for canned whale meat has become so pronounced that the prospective pack of the British Columbia whalers is already disposed of. The canned whale meat is mostly distributed from England.

Canada's Cereal Supremacy Is Clearly Shown By Crop Records Of Recent Years

Fared Over Production Of Fish

Officer Closed Lesser Slave Lake For One Week

The Lesser Slave Lake was opened July 15th for summer fishing, with the following firms operating, viz.: McInnes Fish Company, Menzies Fish Company, Lakeside Fish Company and Clark & Johnson. The operators have been allotted as their seasons' catch one million and a half pounds of whitefish. Up to the end of July, twelve cars, containing an average of 24,000 lbs. per car, passed Edmonton, moving to Chicago, Ill. A very heavy run has been reported and so large was the take that the fisheries officer in charge decided that over production would be the result and as a consequence, closed the lake from July 21st to August 6th.

Alberta's Dairy Interests Growing

Indicating the growth of the dairy interests in the province of Alberta, it is reported by experts of the province that the number of milking cows is at the present time nearly 400,000. The value of these cows is estimated at $15,500,000 and the value of their production in the last year $23,000,000, $2,500,000 more than the value of the cows. Fifteen creameries have been established in Alberta this year making a total of sixty-nine now in operation.

The art of hatching eggs by artificial means was known to the Chinese and Egyptians at an early period.

The rapid settlement of Western Canadian lands which has taken place in the last quarter of a century, especially by the two main classes of British and Americans, is the most eloquent testimony, if any were needed, of the greater advantages found in following the pursuit of farming in that area over their native lands. Many of the advantages are patently obvious, others not so clearly so.

The American immigrant, who is nearly always a farmer, is given the opportunity of securing, at a much lower price, a more substantial acreage than he has been accustomed to; he can expand his holdings without limitation, which extension is precluded when hemmed in with high-priced lands. The boom is even greater in the case of the British immigrant, to whom the possibility of ever owning land of his own is extremely remote.

It has likewise been pointed out recently that the Western Canadian farmer has certain advantages over the agriculturist south of the border in the marketing of his produce. Whilst, for instance, wheat prices at the Canadian markets are frequently as high as on the American markets, the farmer in the prairie provinces is able to get his crop to the marketing points or ship it to the lake terminals at a much lower rate than that paid by his farming brother to the south.

There is another decided advantage to Canadian farming often overlooked. Whilst the American farmer coming to Canada secures a much larger acreage than he has left, at a considerably lower price, he finds the cheaper acre of Canadian land capable of a greater production than his former high-priced land. Even in comparison with the small farms of the British Isles, where farming activities are prosecuted so intensively, the Canadian yields, on farms, many times their size, compare very favorably.

To consider wheat first. The quality of the Canadian product cannot be gainsaid when year after year it secures the world's premier honors and millers all over the world demand it. The average production of fall wheat in Canada for the last ten years has been 23 bushels to the acre, and of spring wheat 15.56 bushels to the acre. In the United States, where farming operations are carried out on a very similar scale, the average production in the period 1916-20 was for fall wheat 14.93 bushels, and for spring wheat 11.23 bushels. The production of all-wheat in England and Wales in 1919 was only 28.7 bushels to the acre.

Taking a list of the thirty leading wheat-producing countries of the globe, Canada is found, in average yield per acre, to be outclassed by only eight of them, and they, such countries of intensive farming as Germany, Belgium, Denmark, England and Wales, Greece, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Canada substantially out-yields such other countries of small farms as Austria, Bulgaria, Spain, Finland, Hungary, Italy, Netherlands, Roumania and Sweden.

The average acre of Canadian land seeded to oats in the last ten years yielded 32 bushels to the acre as against 31.32 bushels in the United States in the four-year period 1916-20 and 44.32 bushels in England and Wales in the same time. Only six of the thirty countries exceeded Canada's average, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, England, Netherlands and Sweden, and it should be remembered that all of Canada's export wheat is hard.

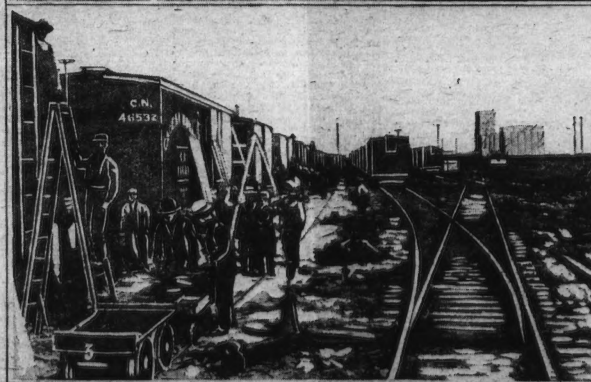

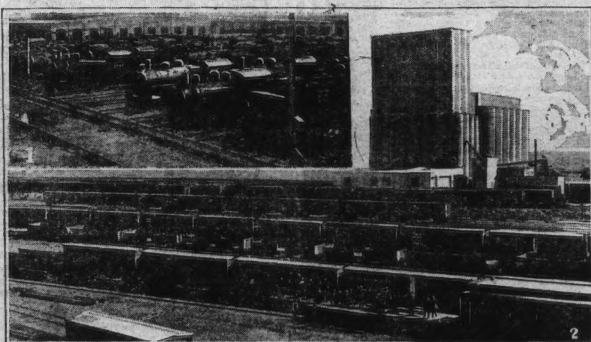

Canada's ten-year average in barley production has been 24.75 bushels per acre. Against this the United States, in the four-year period under review, produced an average of 24.33 bushels per acre, per year, and England and Wales 22.04. The same six European countries outclassed the Dominion in the average production of barley.

Against a United States average rye production of 13.75 bushels per acre in the period 1916-20 Canada has a ten-year average for this crop of 15.75 bushels, and only seven countries have a higher average yield; and that on relatively small acreages.

RUSHING NECESSARY REPAIR WORK ON CANADIAN NATIONAL GRAIN CARS

The Transcanada yards and shops of the Canadian National Railways have for weeks been busily engaged in getting engines and cars into shape for the grain movement now opening.

No. 1 photograph shows giant locomotives as they came from the Transcanada shops after being "tuned-up" for the greatest transportation effort of the year.

No. 2—Strings of box cars which have just been delivered from the repair yard.

No. 3—The busy "rip track," where gangs of men have been for months working on necessary repairs and in some cases almost rebuilding box cars in order to fit them for the grain-hauling rush.

If all the engines which are ready for the grain movement were placed end to end they would stretch over some ten miles of track; while the aggregate length of the box cars which have been distributed through the western grain areas in preparation for the movement would be some 350 miles. Preparations for the movement of the crop have been made on a monumental scale and it is anticipated that this year the Canadian National will handle a greater proportion of Canada's wheat yield than ever before.

CHAPTER ONE

I was baptised "Margaret Anne," and Father and Mother always called me by the double name.

When I was quite tiny, Mother, who had the keenest imagination of any woman I have ever known, taught me to pretend that I was two little girls, so that I should always have someone to play with. Margaret it was who washed the dishes after tea, who never forgot to hang up her coat and hat, who shut doors quietly and always said, "Please" and "Thank you." But Anne was the tomboy who would rather climb trees than go to school, the knees of whose stockings were sure to exhibit holes at the most embarrassing times, and who was always getting into scrapes out of which the more thoughtful Margaret had to extricate her. As I grew older Mother confessed to me that she had begun the game with a purpose. She had realized, she said, that I was of the temperament that was likely to give me trouble in after life, and so she had tried to make me see that each side of me had qualities to be curbed or developed. The impulsive Anne must be trained to think, the outgoing less troublesome Margaret to avoid growing into a materialistic and selfish woman. I believe now that Mother exaggerated the situation somewhat, but even yet I find myself sometimes Margaret and sometimes Anne. It was, for instance, Anne who married — but I am running ahead of my story.

Father died when I was ten. I remember him as a quiet man of the scholarly type, always gentle and very patient with me, but often worried and absent-minded. I know how that he was worried, for he knew that he must leave Mother and me with practically nothing to live on. He taught Latin and Greek and Mathematics in the Collegiate in Winnipeg, and even yet I often meet men and women who tell me that he was the most wonderful teacher they ever had. Like all men of his type, he had a dream. Teaching did not mean to him the cramming of unrelated facts into the plastic brain of a child. It meant the giving of the world's store of knowledge in such a way that the pupil would be fitted for life, would be able to apply his learning to the problems of everyday existence, and so develop the finest type of citizenship. Growing out of this ideal was Father's plan for a new method of teaching languages. Only last week a Murray the pile of manuscript notes that Mother had kept for me, the synopsis of the text-book that Father hoped some day to write. Rare as the cutlery is, it shows the broad vision that inspired the man who drew it up — history, geography, philosophy and science are all made to contribute their share, and Greek and Latin become, not dead languages, but a living link in the long chain of the progress of the race.

As I said before, Father died when I was ten. We buried him in Old Kildonan and then Mother and I discussed what we should do. I can remember how proud I was that Mother should consult me, and it did not occur to me then that in her loneliness she was merely thinking aloud. Childlike, I was delighted when she told me that she had seen the Superintendent and was to be given one of the primary grades in the very school I attended. She had taught for a short time before her marriage, but she would always say, "I was never a teacher of your father's sort. I taught because I had been brought up to believe that it was the one way in which a lady might earn her living without losing caste."

We sold all but our nicest furniture, our books and pictures and china, and with the good fortune that is the nearest thing to a miracle, we found, almost without looking for it, the place that was for many years a real home. On Donald Street, which was not then the street of boarding-houses that it has since become, you can still find the old cottage, shabbier now than when Mother and I lived there, but still looking comfortable and hopeful like any approach to it in the proper mood. It is a real cottage, not a modern bungalow with tiny rooms; and it is owned and lived in by two of the dearest people that were ever put into the world to teach us to grow old gracefully.

The Robertsons had a small income, but not enough to keep up the home they loved. And so a friend of Father's, who was also a friend of theirs, persuaded them to take Mother and me to live with them. We had two rooms in the "new house," as it was called, and I was greatly puzzled until I saw the place. But when I discovered for myself the fascinating livery rooms, with windows turned the opposite way from those in other people's houses, my mystification gave place to love, and I have loved the old house ever since. Granny and Grandmother took us not only into their home but into their hearts, and the rent of a "suite of Light Housekeeping rooms" could never pay them for what they gave us. Their reward will come out of the goodness of heaven for those who comfort the fatherless and the widow.

"I Can Now Do My Work Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffatt, Roxton Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from the first box, and continued taking several boxes. Today I feel like a new woman and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

When I was ten I considered my Mother to be quite an elderly person, though at that time she was only thirty-two. She was a pretty woman, with very charming ways, and as I grew older I realized that she might more than once have married again. She never mentioned the subject, but once, and that was after I had overheard an old but tactless friend remonstrating with her.

"You will not understand this now, Margaret Anne," she said to me, "but try to remember that I say and when you are older it will come back to you. A woman is often tempted in this hard world to take a second-best. But if she knows, or has known, what alone will satisfy her, she will be strong enough to endure whatever comes. Mrs. Stevenson is a kind woman, and she meant well, but she should not have spoken before you as she did. Your mother will never put another man in your father's place, nor ask her child to share her with someone else."

For eight years Mother and I lived a very quiet life, but to me at least a very happy one. We always had to count our pennies, but we had many friends, and as for my childhood, they always seemed as glad to come to my home as to the homes of the wealthier members of our circle.

Social life was much simpler in Winnipeg then than it is now. Even wealthy people sent their children to the public school quite as a matter of course, and many of the women who are now leaders in the younger married set were my schoolmates, and quite frankly, I believe that they will bear comparison with those of a later generation who are the product of private schools.

I do not mean to say that twenty years ago Winnipeg was in the Golden Age of absolute social equality, but it had undoubtedly more of the pioneer spirit than it has today. Even then we had our fast set and our exclusive set, our snobs and our climbers, but I do not think that the mere getting and spending of money was held to be of quite so much importance as it is today. People who had "roughed it" more or less in the early days were, in most cases, satisfied with a comfortable home and an assured income. Even had they desired it, there was not the opportunity for ostentatious spending that there is now.

Such conditions made it possible for Mother and me to associate with people of the sort to which we had been brought up, and I can truthfully say that we were seldom handicapped socially by the fact that we had to make our own way in the world.

I went to school until I was eight, then I took a course in stenography and in a few months was ready for an office position. Mother, I think, would have liked me to be a teacher, but I had little inclination to follow in her and Father's footsteps in that respect. Margaret saw very clearly that while a teacher gave greater service to the community than almost any other member of it, it worked for me much indeed.

"But, child, you cannot put your feet on a financial basis," said Mother, when we discussed the subject.

Whereupon I retorted, "No, but a moral compensation will not pay the grocer and the butcher?" Had there been no financial problem I should have gone to college. At different times I saw myself a doctor, a nurse, a lawyer, even a teacher who would carry on Father's traditions. But I could not let Mother support me for another four or five years. And I had, besides, an idea that women would in the future play a larger and more important part in the business world than they had in the past. Poor mother, I am afraid she thought me down a step in the social scale, but I bore heavily on the fact that if I were a teacher I should have to spend two or three years in country schools before I could hope for a place in Winnipeg, and eventually she became reconciled.

For four years we both worked, and during that time we began to accumulate in the office where salaries were good to begin with, and where increases came regularly, and when in 1912 my salary was raised for the first time I insisted that Mother should resign and take the rest that she had so long needed. All my power of persuasion were required to make her see that such a course was practicable, but at length I succeeded, and so long as I live I shall be thankful that I was able to repay even that small part of the debt I owed.

With the lifting of the constant strain of teaching and controlling day in and day out, fifty "wild young animals" of the human species, Mother seemed to grow younger as the months went by. Freed from the necessity of having to conserve her strength for her work, she was able to go out more, to accept all the invitations that came her way, and to give freely of her time and energy to the Church and charitable work in which she had always been so greatly interested. And she was still able to add to the Rainy Day Fund from time to time. For years she had occasionally written and sold a story for children, a nonsense rhyme, or a story for grown-up children, and now that her time was her own the little cheques came often. We continued to live with the Robertsons, rather against my wishes. I felt that we might have had a small suite of our own in one of the apartment blocks, but at any hint of this Mother would say: "No, we are living cheaply and very comfortably here, and it would be foolish to move. What we can spare we must save for your house."

And then I would laugh at her and change the subject. For at that time I was firmly convinced that I had been predestined to a business career, and Mother could never be persuaded to take me seriously.

Looking back now I find it hard to realize how much my work filled my life at that time. At first I hated the office. Mother had sheltered me from (and had and side of life more than I knew, and, fatherless and brotherless, I had very little knowledge of men and their ways in the business world. It is funny now to think of the day when the uncle of one of my chums snatched out a complaint at me in language more forceful than courteous, but then it was jarring. The mistake for which he blamed me had been made by one of the other girls, and while Margaret wanted to cry Anne wanted to fight. However, to parody Kipling, "I learned about men from him," and in time I acquired the necessary impersonal attitude toward my fellow workers.

And almost imperceptibly I became more and more interested in work. I am afraid I was rather hard on the girls who did what was demanded of them and nothing more. I did not realize then that they, in many cases, had no social life, and no opportunity to make friends, except amongst the people with whom they worked. I do not think that I was exactly snobbish, but my attitude toward them was that of a girl in common with any other girl. My friends were still very to the girls and boys with whom I went to school—it made no difference to me whether the Manager's stenographer asked me to go to lunch with her or not, or whether the man at the desk looked upon me as a machine or as an attractive human being. I was of only natural, I suppose, that I should have looked with youthful scorn upon the girls whose entire lives were matters of importance, but I am just a little sorry now that I was so critical—and that I failed to grasp the truth that the girl who has a home and a circle of friends and the girl who is quite "on her own" must be judged differently.

Air mail pilot Jack Knight, who started at night from Cheyenne, Wyo., when he received word of the serious illness of his father in Chicago, Mich., arrived in Chicago before dawn, the next morning and at once popped off again for Buchanan, 75 miles east of Chicago. Air mail officials said this constituted the longest single night flight in the history of aviation, about 975 miles from Cheyenne to Buchanan virtually all covered in darkness.

In this issue we offer to our readers a new serial story, "Opening Doors," by Elinor Marsden Eliot. Read the opening installment.

No Definite Information In Regard To Rumors Of More Bank Mergers

Toronto.—Following the prediction of Sir John Aird, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, that more mergers of Canadian banks are possible, the air has been full of rumors as to banks "in difficulties" that might lead to amalgamation. There is, however, no definite information along this line in regard to any banks.

Moreover, it has been stated by leading bankers that recent events have cleared the situation, and, while more mergers may come, it is believed that in no case are the difficulties so acute that an amalgamation, merger or absorption, with or by a stronger institution would not fully protect shareholders as well as depositors.

Ottawa.—Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, announced that, at the request of directors of the two banks concerned, and in conformity with the provisions of the Bank Act, he has given his consent to the sale of the assets of the Bank of Hamilton to the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

"This," said Mr. Fielding, "is the first official step in the matter. The agreement, after all details have been settled between the two banks, to be effective, must have the approval of the Governor-in-Council."

"Bank mergers," said Mr. Fielding, "are not popular with the public, and the minister of finance is naturally disinclined to give his consent to such unless there are urgent reasons for the merger."

A Million Dollar Policy

Life of Dr. Banting Insured for Huge Sum

Toronto.—Another significant compliment is paid Dr. F. G. Banting, discoverer of the insulin treatment for diabetes, in the issuing of a million-dollar policy on his life. Early reports had placed the amount of the policy at $500,000, but investigation is claimed to have shown that it is for one million dollars.

While the officials of the insurance company which has issued the policy refuse to reveal from whom they will receive their premium of $35,000 each year, it is understood the amount has been guaranteed by the Rockefeller Foundation. The placing of the policy on the life of Dr. Banting practically means the assurance that the great research begun by him will be carried on after his death. The million dollar proceeds from the policy will meet the award or loss in the nature of a Banting Research Foundation.

The policy on the life of Dr. Banting is the greatest ever written in Canada. The business was put up to competition and financial experts made the award or loss in the nature of a Banting Research Foundation. The insurance officials refused to comment on a dispatch from New York which said the Rockefeller Foundation officials in New York had denied that the premiums are to be guaranteed by the foundation.

Russians Hold

Memorial Service

Commemorate Anniversary of Death Of Imperial Family

Sofia.—The anniversary of the death by Bolshevik violence of Czar Nicholas II, and the Russian Imperial family was marked recently by an impressive memorial service in the church attached to the Russian embassy in this city.

Russian pilgrims of all classes of society, from nobles to laborers, filled the beautiful structure, which is a gift from Nicholas II.

Each member of the late Imperial family was mentioned by name, the priest referring to "Thy servant Nicholas," "Thy servant Alexandra Feodorovna," "Thy servant Alexei," and so with the Princesses, Olga, Tatiana, Maria and Anastasia.

It was a devout audience, to which the act of half a dozen years ago was an event of today.

Palms were taken by the police to exclude all Bolsheviks, for fear they might disturb the services.

Greece Demobilizes Army

Athens.—An official decree ratifying the treaty of Luissanne and the conventions annexed to it was published here.

Another decree proclaims the cessation of the state of war with Turkey and the return of the army to a peace footing. All the extraordinary legislation passed during the war is rescinded, but the state of siege and the censorship are maintained.

To Tour Alaska—Boys Receive Send-Off From Canadian Pacific Station, Vancouver

Forty-four of Detroit's brightest boys photographed in front of the Canadian Pacific station, at Vancouver, B.C., enroute to Alaska in charge of George Buchanan, wealthy bachelor, of the former city. Every boy in the picture, including Donald Blaine, who is the first boy on the left in the front row, and who enjoyed the distinction of being the only Canuck in the party, earned at least one-third of the cost of the trip, the remaining two-thirds being met on a long term loan agreement between the boys, Mr. Buchanan and their parents. The youngsters who had to attain certain other standards besides salesmanship, earned their share by selling soap, pencils, salt buckets and coal from Mr. Buchanan's yards in Detroit, the small Canadian recruit "boring in" on the party after an aggressive campaign of paper selling in New Island, Alta.

Reparations Solution Appears No Nearer To-day Than A Year Ago

Guard Against Bandits

Banks Along Southern Border Will Take Precautions

Winnipeg.—Returns from the Manitoba wheat crops soon will be coming in. Banks throughout Southern Manitoba, realizing the danger from the looting expeditions of the marauders from the other side of the line, who last year terrorized the southern portion of the province, are taking extra precautions for the protection of the farmers' money. Provincial police detachments along the border are more active than ever before.

Commissioner H. J. Martin, head of the Provincial Police, has left for the boundary on a general tour of inspection of defence and detachments will be gone for a week. During this time he will also confer with bank managers in some of the more exposed boundary towns, and complete arrangements for the protection of these banks. It was stated that the banks would not carry one cent more in funds this fall than possibly could be avoided.

Airplane Passengers Start Fatal Panic

May Buy Wheat From Pool

Representatives From England Now Looking Over Possibility

Winnipeg.—Representatives of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, Limited, of England, are in Winnipeg to conduct an investigation into the possibility and desirability of buying Canadian wheat direct from the proposed co-operative pools. The society has 4,000,000 members in Britain, an annual turnover of £200,000,000, and mills 500,000 bushels of wheat weekly.

"Opening Doors," by Elinor Maren Elliot, is the title of the new serial story which is offered to our readers this week. It is a story dealing with western rural conditions, and will be found of absorbing interest.

Fifty Bushel Crop

Leithbridge.—A P. Hughes, of Barons, threshed 1,400 bushels from a 28-acre field of spring wheat on his farm at Sundial. The wheat graded number one. This is the first 50 bushel crop reported this year. Several 50 bushel crops have been recorded to date.

London.—Belgium's latest reparations note is considered by British Government officials, to whom it was addressed, as offering little or no advance toward a solution of the Ruhr impasse.

While appreciating the generous language and the marked anxiety of the document, British Foreign Office experts were regretfully forced to admit that its financial proposals fall far short of Great Britain's expectations. British officials professed to see in the note some evidence of composition by Premier Poincare of France.

Some surprise was expressed at the firm re-statement of Belgium's claim to priority. British experts reaffirmed their view that Belgium was showing herself too exacting in this respect in view of the allies' generous action in wiping out the $1,500,000,000 owed them by Belgium, and the further fact that the Belgians have already received about $360,000,000 of the total of $500,000,000 reparations due them from Germany.

The suggestion by the Brussels Government that the percentages agreed upon at the Spa conference be revised receives scant sympathy from the British, who see in such a plan a curtailment of both the British and Italian shares of the indemnities.

Broadly, therefore, it is held in governmental circles, that a reparations solution is no nearer today than a year ago, and that whatever slender hope there is for the future rests with the personal meeting of Premier Baldwin and Premier Poincare before the former returns from his vacation in France.

Prince to Spend Quiet Holiday

Will Not Accept Any Public Engagements in Canada

London.—An official statement about the Prince of Wales' visit to Canada says the Prince's plans are now complete. He will embark on the Empress of France on September 5. On reaching Canada he will proceed directly to his ranch in Alberta, where he will reside during his whole stay in Canada. He is due back in London on October 20.

All statements published about the Prince's acceptance of public engagements while in the Dominion are without exception incorrect. He has not accepted, nor will he accept, any public engagements of any kind in connection with his coming Canadian tour.

In the first place he will not appear in Canada as the Prince of Wales, but as the Duke of Cornwall. In the second place, he is not in any sense making an official tour, but is merely going as a private gentleman to spend a quiet holiday on his estate in Alberta.

Winnipeg to Edmonton Telephone

Winnipeg.—Winnipeg talked with Edmonton over telephone wires. Hon. John Brocken, Premier of Manitoba, carried on a conversation on crops and wheat pools with Hon. W. V. Smith, Minister of Telephones for Alberta, and over the 960 miles of wire their voices were heard distinctly. It was the longest all-Canadian telephone route so far established, said Mr. Bracken.

Get Yer Pictur Took, $65.

Those who think you can't get "hooked" when signing an agreement for picture-enlarging with a pedlar who calls at your house, should consult with a few in this district whose recent experience along this line easily proves it can be done.

Some time ago, according to the tale told by the victim, one of these picture sharks called on a resident of the district, and explained the easy method by which the picture of a loved one could be enlarged and beautified. The sum agreed on for this was to be $8. A month after when the pedlar returned $25 was demanded before the new picture and the original would be returned. An alleged compromise was effected, whereby the resident was to get two more pictures for this price, and a new note was signed. Judge the victim's surprise, when, a short time ago, he was notified a note of his for $65 was sent a lawyer firm for collection. All efforts having failed in an effort to prove it all a mistake; the victim was finally given a limited time to pay, following this a seizure was made to satisfy the $65 claim. It seems hard to understand why people who can't read English perfectly are willing to sign documents with a stranger under such conditions. The only remedy seems to be, to do without the enlarged picture or transact your business with those on whom you can rely and on whom you can have a come-back if you think you haven't received a square deal.

Iron Horses Ready For Grain Rush

HERE are some of the engines and box cars, Canadian made for Canadian traffic, which arrived in Winnipeg recently to augment the rolling stock of the Canadian Pacific railway. This equipment is now in readiness for the transporting of western Canada's crop, which bids fair to be one of the largest ever recorded. These additional engines and cars were constructed at the company's shops at Angus, near Montreal, and have been assembled at the Weston shops, Winnipeg, awaiting the call to the harvest fields of the west. The upper picture shows four trains leaving Weston with a string of approximately 100 box cars per engine. Each car has a capacity of 60 tons. (2) and (3) some of the new freight engines which will be used to haul the grain throughout the three prairie provinces. (4) One of the 55 new P-2 class engines. These engines have a total weight of 232 tons, exerting a traction effort of 55,000 pounds. Their driving wheels are 8 feet 3 inches in diameter, cylinders 26 1/4 in. diameter by 32 in. stroke; the total length being 81 feet, 4 1/2 inches. The tender has a water capacity of 8,000 gallons and 14 tons of coal, which is equal to the average citizen's winter supply of fuel. These engines are known as the P-2 class, numbered in 5,500 series. They have vestibule cabs for the comfort of the engine crew and are electrically equipped throughout. The complete weight of one train hauled by one of these engines, including the engine, is 4,476 tons, of which 3,020 tons would be the carrying capacity for wheat, or 100,000 bushels in each train. The carrying capacity of the 45 engines of this standard is 4,525,700 bushels per trip. Each engine makes one trip a day. Picture No. 5 shows another group of the new Canadian Pacific locomotives. Their capacity and weight rank them among the largest of their type in the world.

Graduate Nurse Finds "The Perfect Remedy"

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say Tanlac is nature's most perfect remedy," is the far-reaching statement given out for publication, recently, by Mrs. E. A. Borden, 426 Pontius Ave., Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, Chicago.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for seven years in the treatment of my charity patients," said Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal."

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach, but on water. I prevailed on her to try Tanlac and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after-effects."

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on Tanlac and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and able to work."

"These two instances are typical of the wonderful merits of the medicine. My confidence in Tanlac is unlimited."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

EXCRUCIATING PAINS, CRAMPS

Entirely Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Eberta, Ont. — "I started with cramps and bearing-down pains at the age of eleven years, and I would get nervous I could hardly stay in bed, and I had such pains that I would scream, and my mother would call the doctor to give me something to take. At eighteen I married, and I have four healthy children, but I still have pains in my right side. I am a farmer's wife with much work than I am able to do. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel like a new woman, helping me every day. My sister-in-law, who has been taking your medicine for some time and uses it every day, told me about it and I recommend it now, as I have received great relief from it." — Mrs. Nelson Yott, R. R. 1, Eberta, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for almost all pains to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief as did Mrs. Yott, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help to perform its functions with ease and regularity.

SUMMER COMPLAINT CRAMPS AND DIARRHOEA

There is no other kind of disease that comes on so quickly and with so little warning as an attack of bowel trouble.

One may retire at night, in the best of health, and before morning be awakened by terrific cramps and pains in the stomach followed by diarrhoea, dysentery, summer complaint or bowel trouble in one form or another.

In this season of the year, when bowel troubles are so prevalent, we would advise the precaution of always having on hand a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry so that you will be ready for any and all emergencies. You will find that a few doses of this valuable remedy, taken promptly, will be the means of preventing a great deal of unnecessary suffering, and many a time saving.

Mrs. W. H. Judd, 174 Catherine St., S. Hamilton, Ont., writes: "Last summer I had a very bad attack of summer complaint, cramp and diarrhoea. I tried many different remedies, but they did not seem to help me. I heard of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so decided I would try it. I only took a few doses, and in a short time I was better."

Natural Resources Bulletin

Natural Resources Bulk Largely in Our Export Trade

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, says:

The export to which Canada's natural resources enter into her export trade is shown by the figures for the year ending March 31 last. Agriculture, the backbone of our export trade, as represented by agricultural and vegetable products, amounted to $497,760,000, or 48.8 per cent. of the total, while animal products amounted to $108,325,000, or 11.6 per cent. The forests, with their products of wood and paper, supplied a value of $128,756,000 to our export trade, or 24.5 per cent., while mines and minerals contributed $123,143,000, or 12.3 per cent. Fisheries, Canada's first natural resource to be developed, showed exports for $17,592,000, or 3 per cent. of the total, while chemical products derived entirely from our natural resources and largely due to our unexcelled waterpower providing facilities for their manufacture, showed exports of $1,047,000, or 15 per cent. of our total export trade. With such a showing made by our $785,000,000 population, it is not much to be wondered at that Canadians are proud of their natural resources.

Americans in Canada

Twelve Per Cent. of Our Population Said to be From U.S.

Few people would credit the extent to which the American people have come to permeate the Canadian Dominion, especially the Western Provinces, in recent years. In the year 1871, when the first census of the newly federated Dominion was taken, Canada was found to have a population of 3,485,761, and of these 24,182 recorded their birthplace as the United States. This was equivalent to not quite seven-tenths of 1 per cent. of the total population. At the time of the 1901 census there were 127,599 citizens of American birth in Canada. In that of 1911 there were 303,880, representing 4.1 per cent. of the total population of the time. From 1911 to 1921 a total of 748,113 citizens of the United States entered Canada, so that at the present time there are well over 1,000,000 people in Canada who have been citizens of the United States, or something like 12 per cent. of the total Dominion population.—E. L. Chicoutin in August Current History Magazine.

SPARKLING EYES FOLLOW GOOD HEALTH

Toronto, Ont. — "From the time of my earliest childhood I had always heard my mother speak in highest praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for women's ailments, so it is not at all strange that after I married and had backaches, nervous spells and other distresses that I should sometime hear my mother had always said of this Prescription, and I found it relieved me of my aches, pains and nervousness. It gave me renewed health and strength and so greatly benefited me that I have no hesitancy in saying that I believe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is absolutely perfect as a tonic and nerve-cure for women who are ailing or nervous." — Mrs. Rose Craig, of Brockville, Ont. GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realises he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to "banish them." No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Australia Air Post Pioneer

Has Covered 2,400-Mile Flight Punctually For Two Years

Australia prides herself on being one of the pioneers in air postal service, and recent compilations have brought out some interesting facts in this connection.

In 1921 an aerial distribution service was started in West Australia with a 1,200-mile route over the most desolate part of the state. The aero planes carried both mail and passengers. The planes fly between Geraldton and Derby with a punctuality of arrival and departure that varies only a minute or two on the round trip of 2,400 miles.

Air postal services are also in operation in other states.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds — In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterising and dressing wounds sustained by the workmen. But better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.

Minard's Liniment for Sprains

Simla Prays By Electricity

Government Solved Difficulty Created By Buddhist Priests

When English engineers wished to build an electric light generating plant for the city of Simla, Buddhist priests opposed the plans because upon every available mountain stream the faithful had installed prayer-mills operated by the current. Upon the wheels were chanted prayers, and each turn of the wheel was a prayer offered to the gods, as efficacious as if offered by word of mouth. It would be a sacrilege, they said, to use the water for industrial purposes.

The government solved the difficulty by directing the electric light company to install motors to drive the prayer-mills, so that Simla now prays by electricity.—Record of Christian Work.
